Hongkons, July 17rm, 1878.

From a short article re-published elsewhere it will be seen that our London pink-hund contemporary the Globe has not much faith in the experiment of educating Chinese youths abroad. The article in question refers especially to the enterprise of His Excellency Your Wing, recently appointed one of the Chinese Ministers to Washington, Young Wing, who has married an American lady, and is deeply imbued with Western and progressive ideas, has, after much labour and persuasion, succeeded in getting a number of Chinese lads sent to Hartford to be educated in the learning of the West, at the expense of the Government of Peking. The results of the experiment remain to be tested, but it seems to us that it is neither fair nor politic to anticipate failure, as our London contemporary does, simply because the European educated Bengalee Baboo has proved a disappointment. The Chinese are a different race to the Bengaless, and we have no right to conclude that they will turn out the same. It is certainly too often the case that Asiatics who receive European training are no improvement, either morally or intellectually, on those of their countrymen who have not enjoyed such an advantage. But a great deal undoubtedly depends upon the preceptors and the method of instruction. The Chinese youth sent to the United States will not, we trust, come back ignorant of the learning of their own country. They will not benefit China if they return simply imbued with a mania for upsetting, everything ancient and Chinese. They cannot safely at once castaside the customs of conturies or upset the traditions of their race. No European Power wishes to see China parting with all that is peculiarly distinctive of her nationality and making a bad copy of Western habits, customs, and institutions. What is desired by the real friend's of this venerable Empire is not that the costume of the people should be changed and their classics consigned to the lumberroom of the past, but that theadministration should be reformed, the laws brought into harmony with modern civilisation; that the institution of polygamy should be discountenanced both by law and by practice; that the ferocious massacre of non-combatants in war should be discontinued; that Government attention should be directed of communication should be established

THE CONSTRUCTION OF RAMS.

The damaged state in which the Konig Wil helm drew back from her collision with the

Grosser Kurfurst calls attention to the danger which an ironolad man of-war as at present constructed runs of being herself destroyed in ram: ming another or of being, at least, so seriously injured that she would be obliged to haul out of action. Not long ago an aminent engineer expressed a decided opinion that the ramming structure of our men-of-war is weak, and pointed out that the stem of a ramming ship should be builtup quite differently from the way in which it has been built hitherto. A strong, heavy lump of iron called a stem is, it was stated by the authority referred to, really a weak weapon, because it is not so made as to be in one with all the ship liehind our large single forgings, stopping short in thin iron shoets, are simply useless through Ituru and Iramba; and though my iron-plated ship will simply double the bew round losses in then were great from famine, the fore if not tour it open. The accounts of the injury suffered by the Honia William, testify in a very striking manner to the correctness of the opinion thus expressed. When she entered Portsmouth harbour the Konig Wilhelm, we are told, drew 30 feet forward, or six feet more than her ordinary draught, owing to the inflow of water into her foremost compartment. The ram, it is added, is twisted to the port-side and all the plates are torn from the forcastle downwards. The rent made is described as being of such extent that it is strange how the ship kept affect; while, the report concludes, it is quite clear that bad any severe weather occurred and any straining of the foremest plates taken place the vessel could never have reached Portsmouth. Clearly, therefore, the König Wilhelm although fitted with a spur, was not of suitable construction for employment as a ram; and it is to be feared that some of our own ironclads might prove equally weak if subjected to an equally severe test. In our more recently built ships more care has: it is true, been given to making the stom stout and strong ; but much has yet to be accomplished before perfection in colision construction is arrived at and if men-ofwas are to be used as rams our naval constructors and architects should not rest satisfied until they have obtained the maximum of bow and stem strength for their vessels.-Pall Mall

PROFESSOR NORDENSKYOLD'S EX PEDITION TO THE ARCTIC.

The Copenhages correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing on the 1st June, says :-The well-known Swedish explorer, Professor Nordenskyöld,gave some details, in a lecture delivered a few days ago, of his projected tour round the north of Asia, to which attention was called at the meeting of the Boyal Geographical Society, on the 27th of May. The expenses of of the exploration will be borne by the King of Sweden, who gives 20,000 crowns (about 2,000 The NEW "MARIE" BIB and CUFFS. guinens); by M. Oscao Diokson, who has bought the steamer Vego; and by the Siberian million- NEW SILK, THREAD, and COTTON. aire, M. Sibiriakoff, while the Swedish Government has given certain facilities for the manning and violatiling of the expedition. The steamer the Vega, on board which the members of the expedition will embark, was bought for 150,000 growns (£8,590), and was built in 1878 for whaling purposes: it measures 299 registered tons. The erew consists of twenty one volunteers. apart, bound wide prospects wherein the lesser mostly from the Royal Swedish navy; and the BABY LINEN and LADIES UNDER bill chains, albeit of dignified proportions, and ship will carry provisions for two years. The Thursday Island by the Ellangeican Missionary tion against the Wayama having collected an pear but as agreeable diversities of scenery. Over expedition will consist of the following memsteamer, in a destitute condition. Mr. Chester, army numbering 150,000 varriors, which, with the whole Nature has flung a robe of verdure of bers - Protestor Nordenskyold; Lieutenant Pathe most fervid tints. She has bidden the moun- lander, R. S.N., commander of the Vega; Lieutentains loose their streamlets, has commanded the ant Brusewitz, R.S.W., second in commend: hills and ridges to bloom, filling the valleys with Dr. Kyellman, professor of botany at the Univegetation breathing porfume, for the rooks she versity of Upsala; Dr. Stuxberg, professor of zoology: Lieutenant Giacomo Bove, of the Royal Italian, Lieutenaut Nordquist, of the Bussian, and Lieutenant Hovgnard, of the Danish navy. The Vega will leave Gothenburg early in July. and proceed to a port in the north of Norway to embark three sarlors known in the Arctic regions from former voyages, and will then proceed direct on the voyage. A small steamer, the Lena, measuring only 100 tons, will not as tender during part of the voyage, preceding the expedition to the Siberian town called Takutch, where she is. to take in a cargo of grain, tallow, and other Siberian produce. It is the intention of Professor Nordenskyold to proceed along the north-western coast of the so called Taimurland as far as Cape Techelyaskin, where he expects to find open water on account of the immense quanties of warm water which the large rivers Ol and Yenisa discharge Squantity which is much larger than that discharged into the Mediterranean and the Black Sea by the rivers Danube, Po. Rhone, the Nile. Don, Dnieper, and other smaller rivers. At Cape Tschelyuskin Professor Nordenskyöld expects that, on account of the rotation of the earth, the current of the warm water will take an easterly direction, which will leave open water far into the autumn-a supposition which appears to be borne out by records of the exped tions of Captain Prontschischeff in 1736, when with his wretched vessel ha reached as far north as 77deg. 29min. or, as is now assertained, close to Cape Tscholyuskin. It is then the intention of Professor Nordenskyold to proceed along the coasts of Siberia until he reaches Behring's Straits, possibly, if the state of the ice permits, making some attempts to explore some of the islands to the porth of Siberia, which have never yet been visited by any European ship, still less QUEEN'S ROAD AND STANLEY STREET.

The attention of owners, agents, and charterers of steamers is drawn to the provisions of The Post Office Ordinauce, 1876, which comes into force on the 23rd instant. Under the old Ordinance no notice was required of the departure of a vessel if not wiver-tised, nor of departures for Canton or Macao. Notice is now required of any departure, though with regard to sailing ships, the old rule will practically remain in force, that notice need not be sent unless asked for. Section XXV. requires that the first notice be sent to the Post Office. In the case of steamers plying regularly or on fixed days, notice of any change in the day or
